FUNDRAISING

“Kingston Smith Fundraising and Management’s professional approach offered new perspectives in helping us to review and refine our fundraising strategy.”

Isabel Cross, Director of Development, Lepra

Kingston Smith Fundraising and Management works with charities, philanthropists and NGOs. We specialise in creating and implementing cost-effective strategies to help charities and NGOs understand their impact, fundraise and build sustainability.

FUNDRAISING IS CRUCIAL FOR SO MANY CHARITIES...

Moore Kingston Smith Fundraising and Management specialises in high value-low volume fundraising such as trusts, individuals, corporates and legacies. We can help by strengthening your charity's fundraising capacity and helping you match prospective donors' Wealth, Warmth and Access with your cause. Our Fundraising Readiness Checker will help you identify where you need help first and what kind of support you could expect from the MKSFM team.

We often meet fundraisers who have been given The Sunday Times Rich List and been told to look there to solve their charity's income needs. However, the Rich List only really provides an inference of Wealth. To be truly effective in fundraising, you need to understand your prospects' Wealth, Warmth and Access, whether they're individuals, trusts, companies or organisations.

Wealth

Wealth, or capacity to give i.e. having assets that can be transferred to charitable purposes is important, but only part of the story. Resources such as Rich Lists, grant-maker databases, or Companies House records can provide this information, as can your own donor database.

Warmth

Knowing a prospect's warmth to your cause is crucial to success. This interest will differ from prospect to prospect. A £10/month donor may respond to different aspects of your case for support and in different detail than a £50,000 grant maker. You can infer some warmth from past practice, either in your charity's records or in the public domain. It's also invaluable to create opportunities to ask donors what interests them.

Access

Wealth and Warmth aren't enough. The final element is having access to your prospect donors. At a basic level this is knowing their address, but success will revolve around multiple access points.

Does anyone in your network know someone connected to the individual, trust, company or organisation? Can they make an introduction or give an endorsement? Who asks and how they ask can make or break a fundraising approach.

OUR FUNDRAISING READINESS CHECKER CAN SHOW HOW WE CAN HELP YOU:

Competency	Where is your charity on this scale?
Clear and demonstrable need	No active beneficiaries	Quantified need with statistics and evidence
Organisation strategy	No strategy or plan	Vision, clarity of purpose, objectives, targets, budgets
A positive image	No online or offline presence	Impact measured and clearly communicated
Strong leadership and networks	Disengaged trustees and senior staff	Engaged and passionate trustees, senior staff, donors, and key influencers
Potential donors	No potential fundraising prospects	Individual portfolios and realistic targets set/ achievable
Internal organisation skills and capacity	No fundraising experience	A successful track record of fundraising with active engaged leadership
Financial Viability	Limited or unrealistic budgets and accounts	Balanced income and expenditure statements. Healthy reserves with robust reserves policy

What you can do	How it helps you
Develop a case for support backed up by facts and user feedback	If you don't know what you're asking for, donors won't know what to give to
Review the link between strategy and income generation with trustees/senior staff	Trustees and charity leaders have responsibility for fundraising and must be equipped to make informed decisions
Better articulate the need so you resonate with funders' interests	It's better to approach funders that are warm to your cause
Look for ways to involve the wider organisation in the task of fundraising	Staff and trustees who really understand a charity are good for its beneficiaries
Research and qualify your prospects, and filter out the suspects	Prioritising those more likely to give moves from transactional to relational fundraising
Incorporate key personnel through training and mentoring	Skilled and keen fundraising staff should become the lifeblood of a charity
Improve financial competencies to present proposals that make sense to a donor	Providing a clean bill of financial health helps you make plans and prove your worth to funders

HOW CAN MKSFM HELP?

We are a team of experienced fundraisers and pride ourselves in responding to your brief with creativity and skill. As a division of a top 20 UK firm of chartered accountants with over 800 charity clients, we benefit from detailed financial knowledge and experience of senior colleagues, as well as excellent support structures and ISO9001:2008 quality assurance accreditation.

We provide

While there is no 'one-size-fits-all' approach to fundraising, there are important commonalities. We support a wide variety of not-for-profits in the UK and internationally, each with their own specific challenges.

Despite their differences, we help each to succeed based on helping them better articulate what they need money for and understand who is likely to give it. We provide a range of services linked to the seven Fundraising Readiness Checker competencies. Responding to your brief, we will carefully review where your charity needs to develop, and create a bespoke programme. Our aim is for clients to improve their sustainability and increase in-house competencies.

Typically clients ask for one or more of the following:

Case for support development	Prospect research
Strategic reviews and fundraising audits	Mentoring services
Training and development	Bid-writing
Support to grow the fundraising team	Annual accounts and budget reviews

We work with...

Recent clients have included traditional household name charities, international NGOs, cultural causes, health charities and educational establishments. We have helped them understand their impact, fundraise and build sustainability by reviewing strategies, undertaking feasibility studies, implementing new trusts and major donor fundraising programmes, mentoring department heads and providing interim fundraising support.

Interested? We would like to meet you!

If it sounds like MKSFM could add value to your work, we offer a popular (and entirely no obligation) free consultancy session. Get in touch with us at fundraising@mks.co.uk or call 0207 566 3690.
